SECOND
VOLUME

PUBLISHED BY THE LITERARY SOCIETIES OF THE MEMPHIS UNIVERSITY SCHOOL.
MEMPHIS, TENNESSEE

Dedication

To the Alumni of the University School, whose memory we cherish, for whose fortune and success in life we fondly hope, we dedicate this, the second volume of the M. U. S.—Kito, in loving remembrance.

Prologue

At last I'm with you once again,
The long expected number two.
I hope I have not come in vain,
And that I'll bring some joy to you.

When number one came out last year
No other "prep" in Tennessee
Had had an annual to appear,
And so we had more praise, you see.

I have, within me, tasteful works,
Which, with such care, our artists drew,
And also essays by our clerks,
While pictures fill me through and through.

Our football team we have on view,
And members of the tennis club,
The baseball nine and track team, too;
And then we don't forget the "scrub."

But then, I guess it's not so well
That I, to you, my own case plead,
And all about my contents tell—
You'd better take the book and read.

Editorial

THE first volume of the M. U. S.—Kito, issued last year, met with a warm and well-deserved reception. Encouraged by the success of its predecessor, we have ventured to bring into existence this second volume, hoping that it may at least merit the same attention and praise that the first volume received.

Although our task has been a difficult one, yet we venture to say that it has not been as arduous as was the task that confronted the editors of Volume I., and we here desire to acknowledge our indebtedness to those who went before us. and. like pioneers, marked the path, in which we have endeavored to follow. But we express the hope that our readers will bear in mind the fact that although those whom we succeed are deserving of much praise for having blazed the way, yet we also come in for a share of merit as well as of indulgence, as being travelers upon a road to us so perilous and untried.

That the results of our efforts are not all that they should be, we are well aware. In fact, we realize that we have "left undone many things that we ought to have done, and have done many things that we ought not to have done." But "a man can but do his best," and it is our best, with due apologies, that we now lay before you. As so great a part of our time and attention has been consumed in the "rough-hewing" work, the "polish" of this volume is not all that we might hope; but

> "Whatever hath been written shall remain,
> Nor be erased nor written o'er again."

And if this M. U. S.—Kito but brings to you the true hum of our school life, without the poisonous sting of hurt feelings, we shall be satisfied. Remember, however, that the antidote for this M. U. S.--Kito's sting---our good will—is ever present with you.

SCHOOL GROUP.

Mr. W. S. Fitzgerald

It is with a feeling of sincere regret that we are compelled to bid Mr. Fitzgerald, our efficient instructor in English and History, an affectionate farewell. The Board of Editors take this opportunity of wishing him success in his new field of labor, and we feel sure that his school at Trenton, Tenn., will meet with well-deserved prosperity.

Mr. Fitzgerald is a B. A. of Vanderbilt University, and before his connection with the University School he had been engaged for several years in school work. Was Professor of Latin and English at the New Mexico Military Institute for several sessions, and resigned in 1900 to accept the position of Principal of Public Schools, and of the Shelbyville Preparatory School, at Shelbyville, Tenn.

Mr. Fitzgerald has had ample experience and training for his profession, and we sincerely hope the time will soon come when the "Fitzgerald School" of Trenton will be ranked among the foremost preparatory schools of Tennessee.

In closing we extend to Mr. Fitzgerald the best wishes of all the boys at the University School and add the following toast as the expression of us all:

Good health to you, and wealth to you,
And the best that life can give you;
May Fortune still be kind to you,
And Happiness be true to you,
And Life be long and good to you—
Is the toast of all your friends to you.

Organization of Societies

J.C.A.

Literary Societies

Among the principal forward movements in the M. U. S. this year was the inauguration of literary societies. For some time the need of such organizations in the school had been apparent, but had never been sufficiently urged or appreciated until this year. We feel sure, therefore, that the step taken meets with approbation on the part of all our Alumni and friends, as well as of the entire present student body.

On Friday, January 22, the organization of two societies, composed of members of the Fifth, Sixth, Seventh and Eighth English Forms, was perfected, the following method of procedure being employed: Mr. Fitzgerald took charge of the meeting, and, after a brief talk, pointing out the characteristics and benefits of such societies, appointed two leaders to "choose up sides" from the number of applicants for membership. Each body thus formed constituted a society and proceeded to organize. The names chosen were the Jeffersonian Literary Society and the Hamiltonian Literary Society.

The societies are of approximately equal strength, from both a numerical and forensic standpoint, and on this account the friendly rivalry is strong and incessant. The meetings are held every Friday afternoon in the study hall. At these meetings one society holds session, while the members of the other are present in a body, simply as spectators and auditors; the following week the order is reversed. On these afternoons the last two recitation periods are given up for the society meetings. For this year the officers are elected once a month, in order to allow all an opportunity to debate and declaim (since, by the constitution, officers are not permitted to take part in the literary program), and at the same time to accustom as many as possible to the dignity of holding office.

As a matter of convenience, we give in this volume only the officers first elected in each society. The literary program of each meeting consists of six declamations and a debate in which four members participate.

The originator of this movement was our highly esteemed instructor, Mr. Fitzgerald. Of all the beneficial innovations in connection with the M. U. S. of which he has been the promoter, this one will probably most greatly perpetuate his memory.

The advantages of these societies will be apparent to all upon a little consideration. It may not be out of place to call to mind a few of these benefits just at this point. In the first place, a membership in one of them is almost an education in itself. In order to participate in the exercises one is forced to search tradition, history and literature, to make a study of subjects social, historical and political. It teaches one how to reason and thus cultivate a broad, liberal mind. At the least, it constitutes a part of every liberal education; it is of great importance to any man, in any walk of life, to be able to express himself in public in an easy and effective manner. How often have we seen men called upon to speak in public who were unable to express their thoughts, or, at any rate, did so with great discomfiture to themselves as well as to their audience?

Again, one derives a great deal of pleasure from work in the societies. It adds interest to the school life and comes as a pleasant break in the regular routine of school duties. It is a leading factor in promoting school spirit, as it adds another attraction to the school.

Judging from the interest with which they have entered upon the society work, the boys appreciate the above mentioned advantages. The societies are at present among the most popular features of the school, and we venture to predict that their success in the future will be such as to warrant all who joined them at first in priding themselves on being charter members of either the Hamiltonian or Jeffersonian Literary Society.

INTERIOR OF STUDY HALL.

STONE

A New Feature

ONE more stride has been taken toward the perfection of our most excellent school for Memphis boys. It is a step almost necessary to the regulation of a progressive school of the present day. The Principals knew how the boys would accept this action and felt that it would work for the mutual benefit of all. So early in March Mr. Rhea announced that the Principals had decided to make a radical departure from the old rules in force in the study hall. In order to augment study and to decrease the number of boys detained after school, he stated that unusual privileges would be granted the boys who should attain certain standards.

These standards are posted weekly and embrace the following conditions: First, that the student shall make a weekly average of 95 per cent. or above on all his studies except one, which must not fall below 85 per cent.; second, that he shall receive no demerits during the week; third, that he shall not be absent during the week; fourth, that he must not be detained after school.

The privileges allowed are liberal. The boys have the use of the grounds during study hours, when they are not engaged in the study hall. They stay near the buildings. so that they can hear the bell for change of classes, and during the warm days of April and May the shade and cool breezes upon the campus prove much more desirable than the school-room.

Thus the boys, who can, take advantage of this opportunity and prepare for their next day's recitations upon the spacious campus. As a monthly record was taken for the first week, only seven scored the required average, though on the following week this number was increased to twenty, which demonstrates the wholesome effect this new feature had; and the boys deserve their share of praise, as it is no easy task to meet the requirements.

But the seven boys who first made this average, and thus established this custom, should rank along with the honor men of our school. The following are the fortunate seven, who were not only the initiates of a most commendable feature, but also have added another era to the history of our school:

Robert Dorsey Andrews,
Richard Miles Buddeke,
Henry Martin Dunscomb,
Clare Hoshall,
Jules Brady Rozier, Jr.,
Albert Guild Riley,
Joseph Marks Sugarman.

A Squirrel, a Rooster and the Jay Birds

SPRING has come and winter has gone, and everything is green outside and inside too. One sees in the trees newly-hatched jay birds pecking one another bald-headed just to pass the time away, and standing nearby sits the old mother.

Under the tree stands a hobo rooster, with his mouth wide open, trying to catch a web-worm which is just out of reach. The worm seems very much excited, for if he goes up the young jay birds will get him, and if he descends he will land in the rooster's mouth; so he strikes a happy medium and swings slowly in the balmy air.

On the fence sits a young gray squirrel trying to make his tail tickle his left ear, but finding it impossible, starts up an old oak tree, and gets half way up when all the bark falls off and mashes the rooster's face into the ground. The young jay birds were convulsed with laughter at this, and one of them lost his hold on the other's head and fell with a thud on the ground near the wounded rooster. The squirrel, after helping the rooster pull his face out of the mud, and after getting all the feathers out of his own mouth, put the young bird on his back, and took it up to its mother.

The rooster, after getting his face clean, started on a run for a beetle. The beetle flew right over a bee-hive and alighted somewhere on the other side of it. The rooster, after circling the hive twice, jumped up on it and, flapping his wings, crowed loudly. The bees now began to come out and sting the rooster, and he saw that his only chance was in flight. He started on a run for the front yard, but getting his feet entangled in some kite string, fell in a heap. The bees now had him at their mercy. First a large bee stung him on the hip, then another on the knee. One tried to sting him on the nose, but he promptly swallowed this one and got stung on the windpipe. The bees, after getting sufficient revenge, returned to the hive and left the rooster trying to get untangled.

The squirrel in the meantime had been having an exciting time. When on arriving with his burden at the jay bird's nest, he met the mother, who thought that he was kidnapping her child. She immediately began pecking him and pulled three beautiful hairs out of his bushy tail. The young bird on his back now gained consciousness and began to stick its spurs into his ribs with vigor. But this was not all, for the remaining birds in the nest began spitting nine o'clock tea in his eye. The squirrel now showed his coolness. He bucked the bird on his back over on the other bird in the nest, kicked the old bird in the stomach, and leaped towards the web-worm, and grabbing him, yelled, "Going down." The worm let him down easy on the ground, and after pulling himself up again, began to swing slowly in the balmy breeze, as he was wont to do.

Ye Historie of Ye Yeare

As a rule, histories make dry reading at the best, and we should not venture to add to this class of writing but for the fact that the record of this year at M. U. S. is so worthy of being preserved that we feel an injustice would be done should we not at least make an effort to leave to succeeding generations of University School boys this precious legacy, our history.

On the whole, the past year has been one long to be remembered by those who have passed these many happy and useful days in the class-rooms and upon the campus, at work and at play, under the shadow of the low brick building on the hill. The year was begun under most propitious circumstances. Never before had such a goodly number of sturdy, resolute youths entered these halls of learning with minds so intent upon success. Nothing could daunt us; even the thought of the difficult conquests of Latin, Greek and Mathematics that lay before us could not terrify our courageous hearts. But with us it was not work, work, work, all the time. "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," and we were determined not by any means to be dull boys.

So the clear, crisp autumn afternoons witnessed a campus enlivened by the crowds of athletes engaged in various sports, football especially. The team of pigskin huggers that took the field reflected honor upon the school, both at home and abroad. Thus the fall wore on and deepened into winter, its close being marked by that most agreeable "rest for the weary," the Thanksgiving holidays.

We had scarcely buckled down again when we began to realize that just before us were those jolliest of all days, the Christmas holidays; but also that between us and the coveted goal was that bugbear of a barrier, examinations. This ordeal safely (?) passed, we "entered upon our rest," and proceeded to forget, as far as possible, everything we had learned by dint of three months' hard work.

The first week of 1904 found each man back in his usual place, with a good list of resolutions pasted in his hat and many pleasant memories of Christmas lingering about the recesses of his cerebellum. Then we applied ourselves more diligently than ever to our books, having nothing else whatever to do, and therefore realizing, for the first time, perhaps, that our education was the chief end of school life—a truth so soon to be forgotten. About this time occurred an event which will always be important in M. U. S. annals—the organization of the two Literary Societies. A complete account of these is to be found elsewhere in this volume. The Glee Club, also, soon began to "tune up" for their annual public performance in the springtime. A few more days and the glad Eastertide was here, with the holidays and base ball trip.

After that had passed it was "all easy;" baseball, tennis and track teams furnished contests to the strong, while the gymnasium tournament and dance came in for a very delightful evening as a break in the monotony. We could now discern upon the horizon the first faint glimmering of that bright time ahead of us, the third of June. Encouraged by this we nerved ourselves for the final spurt, and here we are, at last, at our journey's end.

And in closing this, the history of the eleventh year of our school, we wish to congratulate all who helped to make this year successful, not only in the school-room, but also on the campus, and to offer our sympathies to those who have been less fortunate. In the words of one capable of judging, "we have done our durndest," and now we leave the field of battle to others more worthy than ourselves.

Alphabet

A is for Alec,
The boy with the bangs,
Who causes the ladies
So many heart-pangs.

B is for Bejach,
Our erotic poet;
As time passes onward
We hope he'll outgrow it.

C is for Clapp,
So destructive to pies;
Six "McIntosh specials"
Each recess he buys.

D is for Darnell,
So gay and so fickle;
His winning ways get him
In many a pickle.

E is for Estes.
The sportin' life kid-O!
His exquisite form
By the padding is hid-O!

F is for Fontaine;
'Tis rumored about
That he suffers from nervousness,
Brain-work and gout.

G is for Guy,
Now of him it is said,
As he turns on his toes
A wheel turns in his head.

H is for Harvey,
Whose legs of great length
Combine in sweet union
Both beauty and strength.

I is for Isaac,
Who sold Jones some hose
That flared with the colors
Of many rainbows.

J is for Jason,
Who talks through his nose,
Once he roused Henry's cat
From her peaceful repose.

K is for Kline,
Who to dancing school went,
His mind on the pleasures
Of social life bent.

L is for Leath,
Who, when asked for a solo,
Replied that he'd rather
Drink Mc.'s coco-cola.

M is for "Mike,"
From the "Ould Coonthry" far,
On football and baseball
And track team's a star.

N is for Noble,
Whose brightness and wit
Make him with the ladies
A very great hit.

O is for Orgill;
At "wittle wecess,"
A soda-pop shower
He gives to the rest.

P is for Pullen,
The orator great;
He'll win his mark yet
In affairs of the State.

Q is the question
That faces us all,
When somebody asks,
"Will you be back next fall?"

R is for Ramsey,
The boys call him "Red;"
If you seek for the reason,
Just look at his head.

S is for Schwill,
Whose nickname is "Dutch;"
His sayings and writings
Amuse us quite much.

T is for Tidwell,
Who "cuts the price twice;"
Sometimes in gymnasium
He leaves us a slice.

U is for Us,
Who by hook and by crook
Have given our readers
This excellent book.

V 's for the Varsity
Teams of the year,
Who've won for us
Many a victory dear.

W is for "Wink,"
Of the Hunter sextette;
Which pleases him most,
The blonde or brunette?

X is for Xenophon,
Learned and brave;
His Greek, read by Marks,
Makes him turn in his grave.

Y is for You,
Who these verses peruse;
All personal ref'rence
We hope you'll excuse.

Z is for Zululand,
Far o'er the sea,
Is longing to be.

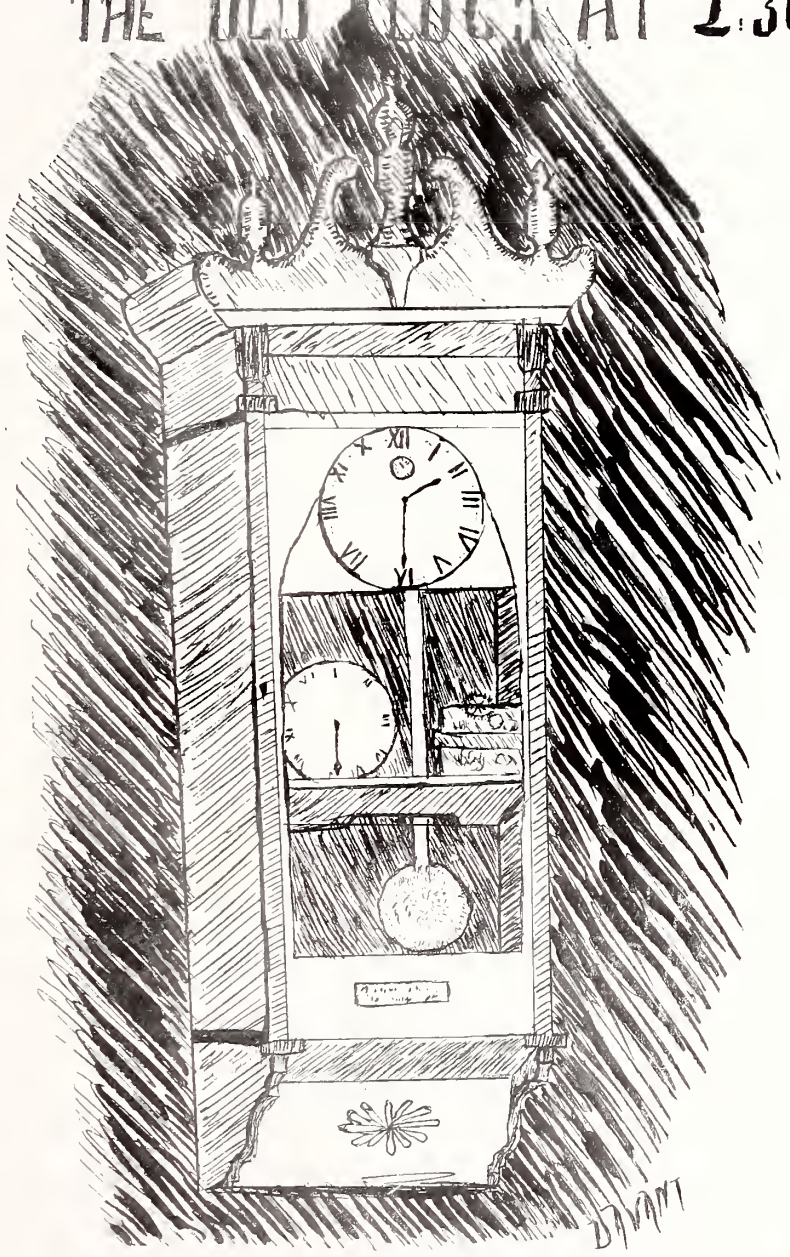
THE OLD CLOCK AT 2:30



Story

How the Express Was Saved; or, Who Chunked the Chunk of Coal

It was a dreary, dark night, and Cæsar, fearing that the bridge over Mud Lake would be taken by the Dunlapii, who are neighbors and near kinsmen of the Manassasii, sent Ambassadors Pullen and Schloss with two legions as a guard to our baggage.

The battle having been fought and Cæsar's men badly beaten, he sent for Ambassadors Pullen and Schloss. Ambassador Schloss was found in the rear of the army with both ears cut off, and said that he had important messages for Cæsar from Cenius Annonas Bedelia, who was then leader of the Dunlapii. Schloss was led forward and was told to give his messages in a stentorian voice. "Mr. Cæsar and Fellow Romans of the Roman Army: When I left camp I expected to return with Ambassador Pullen, but during the battle both of us were taken captive. We were kept apart for two nights, then I was led by two soldiers to where Ambassador Pullen was. The sight I saw was truly heartrending. There was our worthy Arkansas Ambassador tied in a bow-knot around a mulberry tree, and in his delirium I could hear him say: 'Yes, boys, cow meat is good, but horse flesh has it beaten badly. The idea of an ox pulling a cart, ho, ho! Who ever heard of a cow pulling lumber. Mr. Shanks, are these corrections right? Driver, for the sake of your teeth, take that tennis racket out of your mouth.' Such, O Romans, were the words of our worthy Ambassador. I was then taken to the General and made to stand in a barrel of hot coco-cola, while he gave forth the following message for you: 'Tell your General unless he moves his camp and forces from the Campusii of the Musii Mountain, we will not only leave his Ambassador tied in a four-in-hand, but from time to time we will send back small pieces of his suspenders as a memento of the horrible treatment that he is undergoing.'

"You ask me how I lost my ears. It was in this manner: The night on which I was to be sent back was dark and chilly, and the General said that he must have some beef tea, and also told the cook not to return unless he brought some with him. But the cows had strayed down into the valley of Red Elm, and no beef could be obtained. The cook was returning with a downcast look, when on passing my tent he saw my ears protruding through the flaps, and they being good and red, he decided to use them for the beef tea. He called a soldier to help him bind me, and then they got to work on my shell-like ears. My left ear came off easy, but not so with my right one, for its muscles had become strong, as I listen with it much more than with my left. They got both off, however, and after a few moments I heard the General praising the cook on his fine tea, and I silently prayed that he would catch the 'erysipelas.'"

The next day Cæsar broke camp and a few days later the captured Ambassador, Pullen, crawled into camp with his neck through a pair of handcuffs, a steel trap clasped to his right leg, and wearing an expression which not only threw his associate Ambassadors into tears, but also made Cæsar rise up and avenge himself against that bloodthirsty nation, the Dunlapii.

Athletic Association

SEVERAL years ago the University School Athletic Association was organized for the purpose of taking immediate charge of the athletic affairs of the school. The fee is two ($2) dollars a year, one dollar of which is required to be paid at the beginning of football season, the other the first of March. A non-member of this organization is not recognized by any athletic team representing M. U. S.

German Club

The German Club, which was organized in school at the beginning of the year, has at last turned out to be a success. Herr Schwill, who is the sole leader of the club, is a man of rare musical accomplishments, and a great deal is due him for keeping the club together. Not only is the club very select, but it also contains the most proficient musicians of the school.

The members are assessed eight pfennigs a week, and this, together with the fines, enables the club to give entertainments.

The members are:

Herr Schwill, Leader and furnisher of sauer kraut.

Herr Darnell, R.; Herr Darnell, F.; Herr Darnell, H., musicians and general soups.

Herr Duntze, Steward.

Herr Joyner, Body-guard of Schwill.

Herr Rozier, Acrobat and Schooner-washer.

Herr Luehrmann, Stable-boy and Chicken Feeder.

Herr Brode, Weinerwurst Skinner and Eater.

The last entertainment was given on April 7. Every member was required to speak or read some fine piece of art. The program was as follows:

SONGS.

I.

My Bunny Lays Eggs in the Winter.....Joyner

II.

Chop Sticks .....Darnell Bros.

III.

Biffinglungen Valse ..... Herr Schwill

READING AND SPEAKING.

I.

First a short debate was given by the club in order to solve their most difficult question. The subject for debate was: Resolved, that sauer kraut is more easily digested if eaten with the fingers.

Affirmative, Duntze.

Negative, Brode.

The debaters came out even in number of points, so a second debate was scheduled to take place the same date the following year.

II.

A Description of a Hop Farm ..... Luehrmann

III.

Donner and Blitzen ..... Brode

Grinds

Grinds

We hope you'll have a jolly laugh
And trust you won't feel blue,
If in this mass of random chaff
A little is on you.

Just try to take it pleasantly,
And when you look about
You'll see that you are better off
Than those that were left out.

Aspirations

Several boys were asked to hand in on a slip of paper the form of business they are going into when they finish college. The following are the answers received:

"He jests at scars that never felt a wound."—Tidwell.

"Men are but children of a large growth."—H. Hunter.

"Neat, not gaudy."—Leath.

"The short and the long of it."—Dunscomb and Lang.

"A stature undepressed in size."—Watson.

"Bid me discourse; I will enchant thine ear."—Pullen.

" 'Tis seasoned; yea, seasoned well."—Pepper.

The following clipping was taken from Town Topics of May 8th:

"There was a dreadful accident last evening just before the curtain arose at the Bijou. Carl Schwill, the well-known society leader, forgetting that there were no protecting railings to the boxes, as is usual, attempted to lean over the box. He, of course, lost his balance and is now in a serious condition as the result of his fall."

Kate—"They say Frank Harris is always running people down."
Her friend—"Slander or automobiles?"

Algie McGehee, attempting to relate one of Wink Hunter's romantic flirtations: "You see, it was like this. The first girl, she wunk at Wink, then Wink he wunked back; then the girl smole a sweet smile at Wink, and Wink he smole back; then the girl strode towards Wink, and Wink he strided towards her, and that was the last I seen of them; for they had went out of sight."

Ladies, skip this paragraph! It is really unfit for publication. It crept into the manuscript by mistake, so the Annual Board requested the printer to destroy it or else set it wrong side up:

If there's anything worries a woman,
It's something she ought not to know,
But you bet she'll find it out somehow
If she gets the least kind of a show.

Now we'll wager ten cents to a farthing
This poem she's already read—
We knew she'd get at it somehow.
If she had to stand on her head.

First M. U. S. Boy—"Wonder why Bob Jones doesn't visit the barber?"
Second M. U. S. Boy—"Because he has plenty of close shaves in his auto."

First member Primary Department—"Does Roland Darnell ever comb his head?"
Second member—"No; because there's nothing in it."

Wink is like unto a kerosene lamp,
He isn't especially bright;
He is often turned down, usually smokes,
And frequently goes out at night.

WANTED—A new patented, double-action, compound, condensed, double jointed knee cap, that is warranted not to slip, break or get out of order every time it works overtime. Liberal price will be paid for such. Apply at this office.—Ernest Gunther.

LOST—By Jeffreys, the Latinist, a (1) and a (0). Finder will please attach these to the front of my examination marks and be liberally rewarded.

FOR SALE—Poetry at this office. First-class stuff for advertising It may also be used to feed love-sick goats. All goats can address their communications to L. B., this office.

LOST—Several night's sleep. Must have been dropped at Natchez or Port Gibson. Return to baseball team and receive reward.

WANTED—A genuine French chauffeur. No Sheas or Stewarts need apply. Applicant must be a crank, so as to start the motor. Must also have nerve enough for two. Address Bob Jones, this office.

WANTED—By Schloss, a tailor who can pad shoulders so as to give a broad appearance. The pads must weigh at least ten pounds and be detachable, so they can be used for a football suit.

LOST, STRAYED OR STOLEN—A human prodigy. Usually wanders about seeking an argument; holds forth at the weekly meetings of the Hamiltonian Literary Society. Quite boorish in his manners, and always talks with the loud pedal on. Anyone returning this freak to Osceola, Ark., will receive a unanimous vote of thanks.

FORGOTTEN—The number of one of my shoes. Anyone guessing the above number will kindly notify Harry Hunter.

LOST---Common sense. Please return to Algie McGehee.

Proverbs of M. U. S.

1. Rolling Riddick gathers no moss.

2. At a great bargain sale, pause awhile.—Fontaine.

3. Little drops of Leath's blood
From big drops on the bar,
Make a ruddy ocean
Of our new Gym floor.

4. He who hits and gets away
Is without doubt "Ground-hog" Shea.

5. Stuff a cold and starve a fever—
I stuff at all times and have neither. —Forsdick.

6. Never judge a person by his looks.—Bejach.

7. Never too late to learn,
Better late than never.
---Shea Brothers.

9. A honey tongue, a heart of gall.—Fontaine.

We are sorry, but—
A goat ate all our other grinds
And then began to pun;
"I can not help it," he softly said,
"I am so full of fun."

Finale

Now that you've read our annual book,
We hope you've liked its many pages;
If you but knew the toil it took
You'd think that all of us were sages.

But now the book is finished quite,
Although it cost us work and worry;
Sometimes we've had to work at night,
And often times we've had to hurry.

We've worked it o'er from front to back,
And have the proof-sheets all corrected;
So now we hope for no attack
Upon the Staff which was elected.

Before you lay the book aside
You'll see no aid from outside sources;
For you will find that we've relied
Entirely on our own resources.

We hope the book has pleased you much,
And we shall be indeed contented
If you have laughed at jokes and such,
And praised the things which we've invented.

—L. B.

A Last Word

There comes a time in the history of all things, both animate and inanimate, when an end must be reached, and such is the case of this, our second volume of M. U. S.---Kito. As one has well said, "the best of friends must part," in our leave-taking we beg our readers to be lenient with us, for we have done our best and angels can do no more.

This marks the closing of another year in our school life, and for some it may mean the beginning of life's rough journey, while for others it may mean a step higher into the walls of college—at least we as a whole will never be together again—so let us wish one another the best this world can give, and even in our moments of success, let us pause for a while and reflect upon our happy years at the M. U. S., when no cares perplexed our ever joyful hearts and we took no thought of to-morrow. But as said before, everything has its end, so let us all join hands and give three cheers for the Alumni, our successors and last, but not least, for ourselves.

THE BOARD.
